Inside: Super Taekwondo Master. Worst game ever?

Regular readers may have noticed that this month, there's one less plasticky blue thing stuck on the front of your magazine than usual. Even so, we've not made sacrifices in either of the vital areas, quality or quantity. On the two disks we've jammed FOUR CLASSIC FULL GAMES and a massive demo of one of the highest scoring Amiga games of all time. Now if that's not value for money then we're Amiga Power! Older players will be in throes of ecstasy over disk 1 where we present new versions of such legends as Space Invaders, Gorf, Scramble and the mighty Galaxians! Disk 2 should get just about everyone excited with a massive demo of the biggest game to hit the Amiga in the last year, Valhalla & the Fortress of Eve! What more could you ask for? Oh, and they all work on all machines!

Cover Disks

ARCA

Disk 1 All Amigas

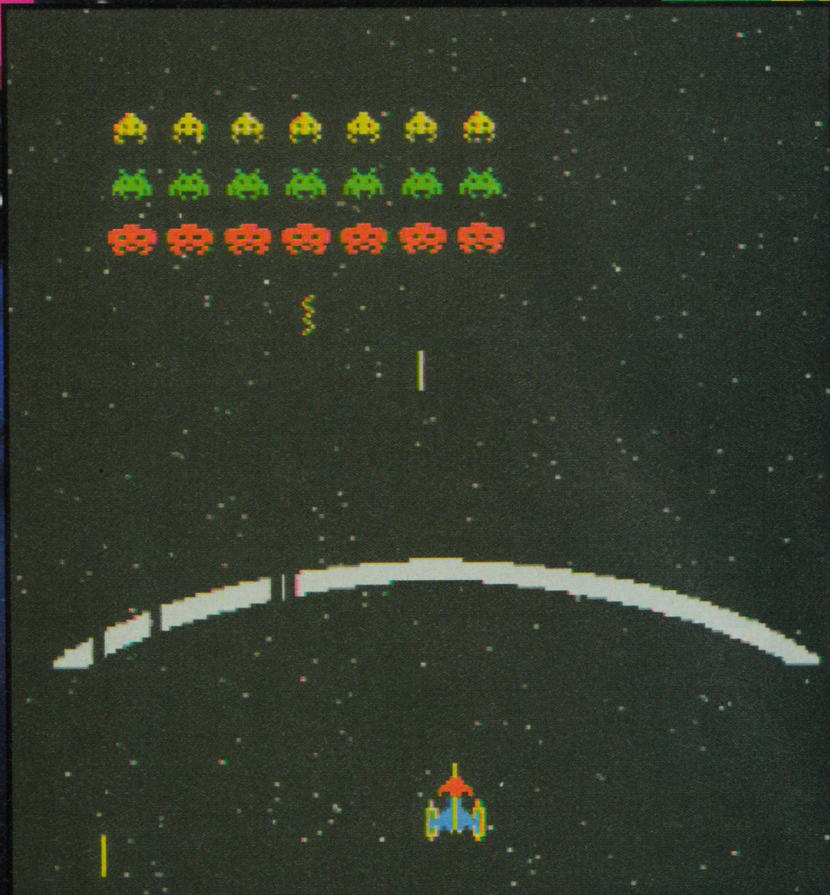

We firmly believe that this disk is one of the finest we've ever given you in our long, 86 issue history! Four of the best versions we've ever seen of the classic arcade machines machines Space Invasion, Gorf, Scramble and everybody's favourite, Galaxians.

All the games are joystick controlled, work on all machines and are fiendishly addictive. Gameplay remains simplistic throughout with up, down, left, right and fire behaving in exactly the manner you would expect and going, well, up, down, left right and fire!

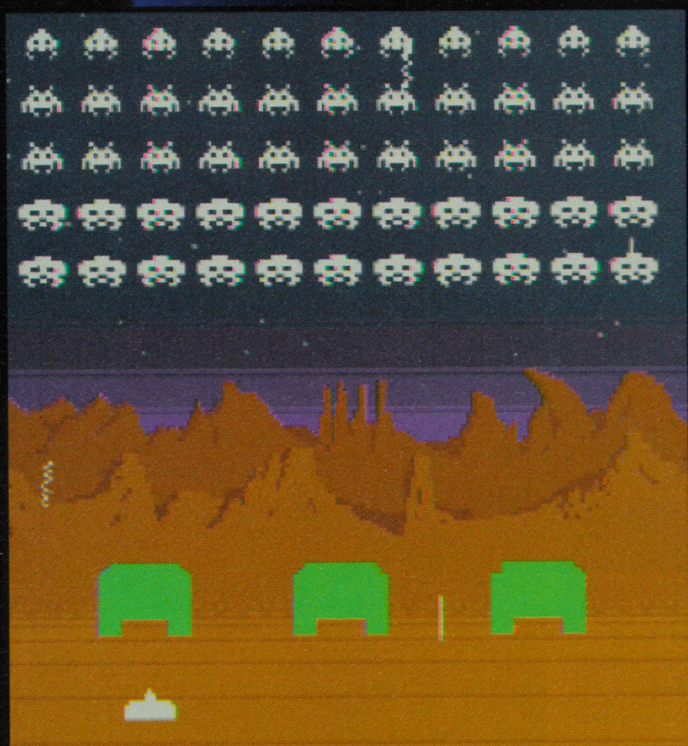

Loading the disk couldn't be simpler either. Bung it in your Amiga, turn on the power and after a few seconds you'll see a menu screen which allows you to choose which game you are going to delight yourself with. Then, when you've tired of that particular offering reset your machine and go through the same simple process once again.

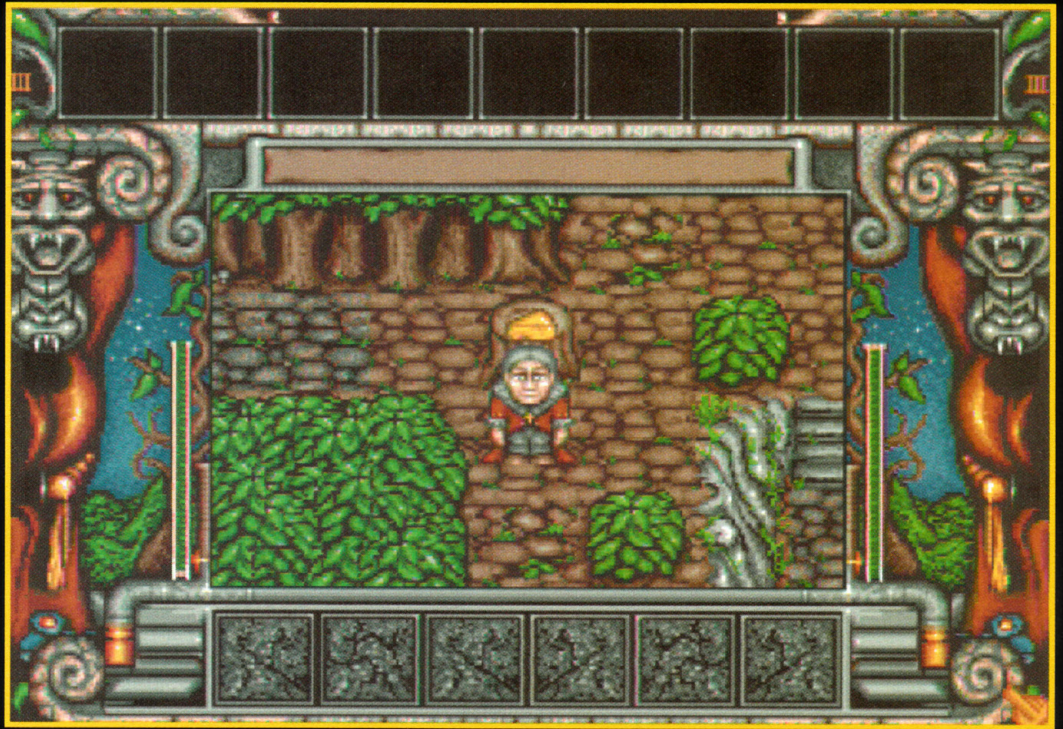

You're guaranteed to be playing this one for hours, and let's face it, all four of the games wipe the floor with drivels like XP8 and you're getting them for free (well, almost) courtesy of your favourite Amiga games mag. We're too good.

Actually, we can't take all the credit. Amiga stalwart Kev Gallagher is responsible once again for some of the most impressive amateur coding we've seen in a long time. Cheers Kev mate, the cheque's in the post!

DE CLASSICS

VALHALLA & THE FORTRESS OF EVE

Disk 2
All Amigas

Now this is a demo and a half! Rated at 94% this very issue you already know you simply have to buy it but if you need that little bit of extra convincing to push you over the edge then this should do it for you.

It's so big that, should you have one, you can install it to hard drive, but you needn't worry if you haven't because it will also autoboot if you just stick it in the drive. To install it simply drag the disk contents into a location of your choice and double click on the Valhalla icon in that place. It doesn't really make a great deal of difference though, there's just no pause each time the king speaks while your machine loads up the sample. Experienced Valhalla players should note that this latest installment is mouse controlled, not joystick and runs very much in a traditional, point and click adventuery type of way. All you need to know are what each of the action icons do (the action icons are situated beneath the main display and will appear when you move your mouse into the action zone). From left to right they are: the map (see a map of the level obviously), look (once again, speaks for itself, used to look at an object directly in front of you), talk (I don't really need to go through this do I? Ah well, never mind), take (represented by a hand icon), operate (basically, use) and disk access (a load of game mechanics type stuff that you can figure out for yourselves).

Look elsewhere in this issue for an Exclusive Reader Offer that will give you the chance to buy the full version of Valhalla & the Fortress of Eve should you find you enjoy the coverdisk. Which of course, we know you will!

Duff Disks

If you put 'em in the drive and joy is not forthcoming, If the light's not on and the drive's not humming, Then there's no real need to bother and there's no need to despair, 'Cos all you need's another and we're going to tell you where You can get it. Oh yes, you can it

Write off to TIB at TIB House, Edwards Street, Eleven is the number and you're gonna find it treat, When on your mat one sunny morning there is heard a hearty plop And you realise the posty's made a most important drop From Bradford. Yes Bradford, in West Yorkshire

It's back by popular demand. What old favourite will we pull out of the bag this month? You can bet it's a good one

News & Competitions

p16 & p34

Well, we haven't actually got much news but what we do have are plenty of competitions for you to enter. That of course only applies if your definition of plenty is two though because that's exactly what we've got.

First up you can win some tickets to Granada Studios Tour (which incidentally is quite close to Steve's house) and get in free and everything. Plus for the more homely out there you can get some Manga Videos on page 34 (probably. I haven't got round to writing that bit yet)

New Feature!

Dead Celebrity Game Guides p26

Following the (oh so) sad demise of the Boggit we've been out and about digging up the rotting, stinking corpses of some of Britain's best loved comedians, and asking them for any hints they may have on Amiga games. This month Sid James shares his 'extensive' knowledge of the classic adventures Beneath a Steel Sky and Operation Stealth. Heee-ah-yah-yah! Etc.

I was a miserable old drunkard you know

Game Guides and that lot

Sensible World of Soccer p22

This month, instead of just rehashing Monkey Island again we've got a special treat for you. We've drafted in sister magazine Amiga Computing's Games Guru Andy Maddock (and paid him a ludicrous amount of money. Low not high that is. Mug.) and set him the task of playing SWOS until his eyes bleed, or at least he knows enough about it to make it look like he knows what he's on about. Which, between you and me readers, I don't really think he does.

Anyway, prepare yourselves for four pages of mindless waffle, drivel and filler that pretends to be helpful hints that will lead you to footballing glory at both domestic and the heady heights of national level.

And by the end of it you'll probably be none the wiser!

Coverdisks p2

Valhalla 3

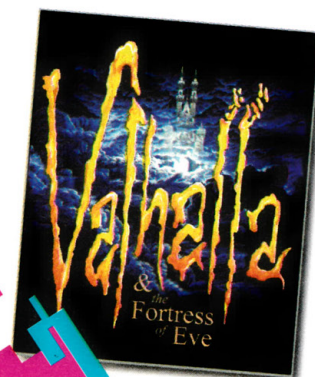

Or is that Disk 2? Can't remember off the top of my head but it's on the disk label so you shouldn't really get all that confused.

Unless of course we mess that up as well and put them on the wrong way round. Which we've done before now! Anyway Valhalla 3's on one of the disks and it's bloody good too. And huge. A bit like this text box which I'm obviously struggling to fill

Arcade Classics

On this disk (or possibly the other) are four of the all time great games of all time. Scramble, Galaxians... er... Gorf and another 'surprise' classic game, the name of which escapes me at the moment. But rest assured it'll a classic. Oh hang on, I remember, it's Space Invasion, a perfect recreation of possibly the biggest name in games ever. And I'm not talking about Pacman either!

ACTION REVIEW

BEAT 'EM-UP

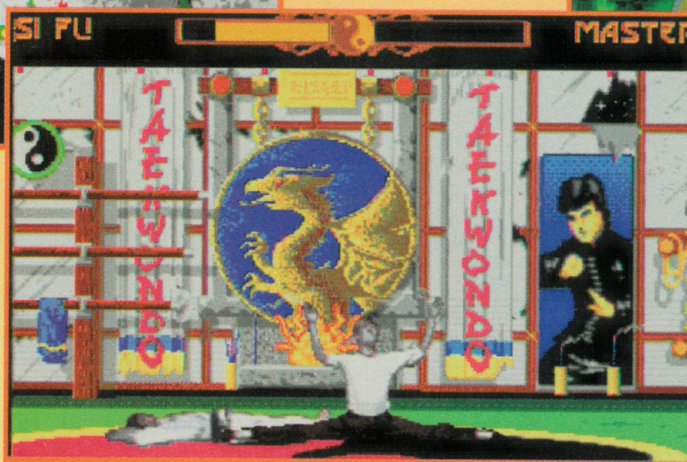

A1200

PU

Check out the darn fine graphics. Notice the graffiti is also oh so realistic. The world has been waiting for ever for something this ream

Computer games have long been prone to latching onto a genre and flogging it with varying degrees of success and failure. The beat 'em up has long been established as a favourite amongst gamers. Every format has had numerous attempts at producing the ultimate battler and the Amiga is no exception.

To date however it's difficult to think of a truly stunning release on this format. Shadow Fighter springs to mind but other than this it's the Nintendos, Segas and Sonys of the world which have produced the goods.

So what does Super Taekwondo Master have to offer which others don't? Basically it offers the player a right good laugh. I'm sure it isn't supposed to induce fits of laughter but this is exactly what it does.

Once it's all loaded up you must choose your fighter. These look to me as if they're the programmers and what a scary bunch they are. There are only six fighters to choose from which limits the longevity of the game as a tournament will be over very quickly indeed. Unlike other fighting games there's only one round so if you lose that's your lot.

You are given three continues to help your progress and with a few differing difficulty levels it does have most elements of any beat 'em up over the years. But this is where the similarities end.

Graphically it looks like a PD release with some terrible animation to match the graphics. Admittedly the sprites do move at quite some speed but there's fast and uncontrollably fast. Can you guess which category this belongs to?

The fighters speed around and are so

Super Taekwondo

What on earth is going on? A Polish beat 'em up! Andy Sharp takes a look, and a right, rare treat it is too!

Don't just stand there man, at least make an attempt to avoid the incoming kick

Two of the tough blokes who quite frankly deserve a right good kicking

Just one of the fighters you can choose. It really doesn't matter however as they're all pretty much the same quick they can actually pass through each other and a punch can connect without even getting too close to the opponent. Maybe it's the displaced air which is forced into your opponents face which does the damage.

Skill levels are supposed to gradually improve as you progress through the rounds but this isn't the case with Super Taekwondo Master - the easy level is simply far too easy and you'll complete it in either your first or second game. Where's the challenge in that? Try the next level up and it's very much the same story I'm afraid.

Your fighting moves are just standard punches and kicks so whatever you do don't attempt any Spinning Bird Kicks or Fire Punches as you'll be disappointed. One notable annoyance in the controls is that it's possible to take out an opponent using one simple move of your choice. Challenging it certainly isn't!

The fact that somebody has spent time developing this is admirable enough but the fact that Mirage are releasing it does say a lot about the current crop of Amiga products that we're being subjected to these days. Oh dear, oh dear, oh dear!

There's nothing more enjoyable than slagging off something which clearly deserves it, so it is with great pleasure (and indeed, enthusiasm) that I can say that Super Taekwondo Master is far and away the worst beat 'em up I have ever played. On any format. This is in itself no mean feat as there have been some absolute dire releases over the years. STM is just far too simplistic (and simple), has naff graphics and, to be honest, it's one monstrous waste of good honest disk space.

Exclusive Reader Offer

It's a dry barren wasteland out there in the Amiga games desert these days. Many a hardy adventurer has fallen by the wayside in the long and arduous search for an even half decent game, while plenty of others have stumbled across a handy railway station and boarded the first train to PC City.

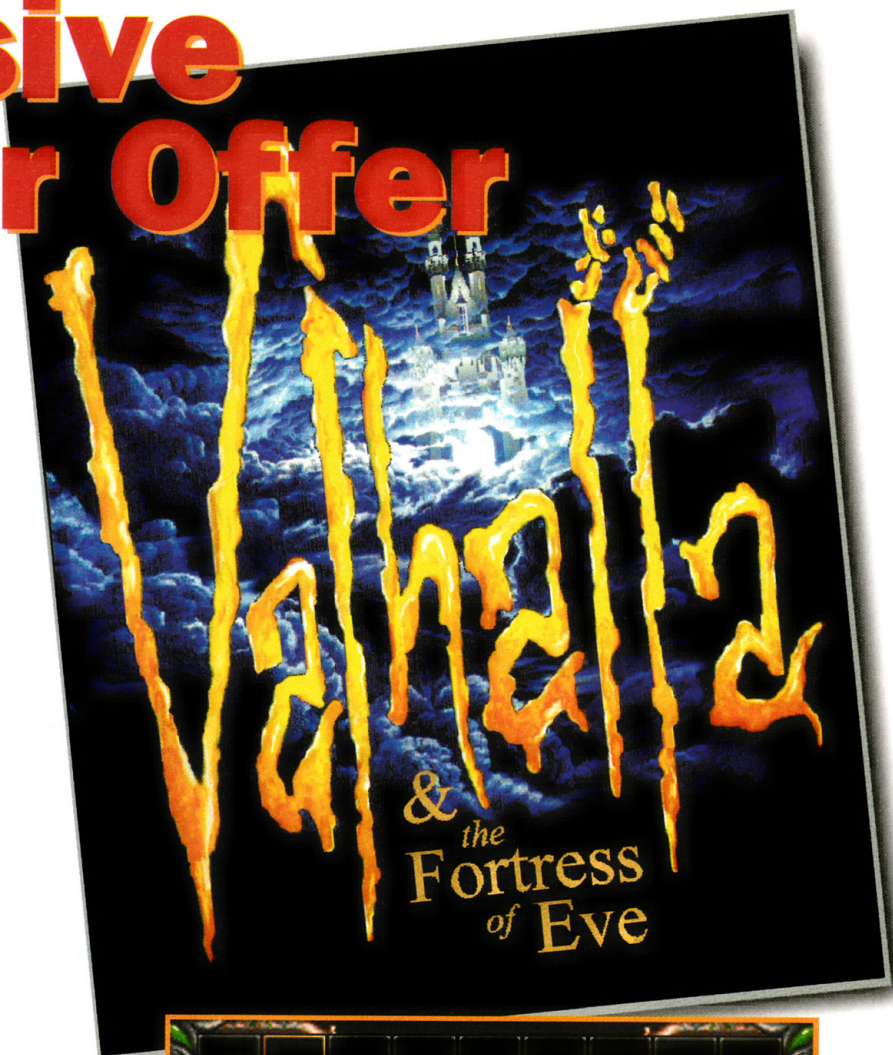

The lucky ones though found the game oasis that is the Valhalla series - guaranteed to quench the thirst of even the most dehydrated, journey weary players. Tough, enjoyable and dangerously addictive the games have always scored well in the hands of reviewers who know what they're talking about and almost everyone who's ever picked up a joystick and taken up the quest has played the game to it's distant conclusion.

Well, with the advent of part three - The Fortress of Eve, Amiga Action and Vulcan Software have teamed up again to bring you an exclusive reader offer! Valhalla 3 will never be available in the shops so the only place you can get it from is through us.

If you're not convinced of its worth read the review, play the cover disk then get your chequebook/credit card out and fill in the form below. Then, in no time at all you'll be able to immerse yourself once again in the world of Valhalla.

Ordering by Phone

You can order Valhalla 3 by phone as well if you've got a credit card. Simply phone 01705 670269 and say that you'd like to take advantage of the Exclusive Amiga Action Reader offer. Simple as that.

ACTION REVIEW ADVENTURE

A1200

In looks alone things haven't changed all that much, but the control has been radically revamped with improvements all round

Valhalla Fortress

Ah Valhalla. A game that I'll actually enjoy playing!
It's moments like this that drag an Amiga games reviewer back from the brink of suicide!

Controversy has followed Vulcan's Valhalla series wherever it has gone. The first game stunned both ourselves and the then popular Amiga The One magazine with both of us giving it higher than average marks (in fact, we scored it as our joint highest mark ever, 94%, an accolade which only Sensible's Cannon Fodder can boast). We thought we were right, no sorry, knew we were right but then we got the latest issue of Amiga Power (who admittedly were reviewing the game a good month after we had... Not that I'm suggesting that had anything to do with the reasoning behind their actions) and what had they given it? Nineteen per cent! Eh? What's going on there then?

Fair enough we thought, everyone's entitled to their opinion (however wrong) but then, a few months later in their oh-so informative Disseminator feature they had the nerve to suggest that we had only given it such a high score because we had a reader offer inside the magazine. True we did give our readers the opportunity to buy the game exclusively through our magazine at a reduced price (as indeed we do again this time! Plug, plug) but this was arranged only because of how highly we thought of the game, and certainly didn't influence our final score in any way, as indeed it hasn't done this time.

Valhalla 2 came along and didn't score quite as well (only high 80's this time!) but only because it was more like a data disk than a new product and we were ever so slightly disappointed in the lack of innovation. Well, Valhalla 3, Valhalla & the Fortress of Eve to give it its proper title is back and if anything it's better than ever. Gone is the cumbersome joystick control to be replaced with a more traditional point and click mouse interface and in come more colours to make the game just as pleasing to the eye as it is to the mind.

THE MINI SERIES

In this third installment the prince is now the King and, being a little more grown up is interested in 'the ladies'. What with being a King and all, he's decided the time has come to find a Queen and hopefully continue the blood line and provide an heir to his throne (beware kids, as you can tell, the storyline's getting just a little bit racey these days).

You'd think, being a King he could have his pick of 'the ladies' and normally this would be the case but, being a Vulcan game you know things aren't going to run smoothly. You see, the thing is, all the eligible candidates for a wife have been captured by nasty old Queen Eve and imprisoned in her fortress as part of a fiendish plot to steal the throne (probably. I'll admit I made the 'fiendish plot' bit up because the storyline gets a bit hazy when it comes to reasoning!).

You play the King's mentor on his quest to free 'the ladies' of Valhalla and find himself a beautiful wife.

Valhalla & the Fortress of Eve

As with the other games in the series there are four treacherous and progressively more difficult levels to guide our hero through and along the way you will be called upon to solve countless puzzles. You will have to communicate with the many characters you will encounter along the way and your skills in general knowledge and word association will be stringently put to the test (which explains why I struggled right from the off then).

As ever the prince, sorry King is a chatty little so and so, as are all the other characters and I know that after a while this can start to grate on some people (although personally it doesn't really bother me all that much). So for the moaners there's an option to limit the King's phrases to just the essentials throughout the game, cutting

As you'd expect, there are plenty of chests around for you to fiddle with, and no, I'm not talking about that woman sat at the back out all the unnecessary 'it's in my pocket's' and such like. Also, as I said earlier the joystick control interface has been sacked and replaced by a nice shiny new mouse one. Which is all pointy and clicky, just like adventure games should be. This led to a somewhat embarrassing incident when we convinced ourselves that our instruction-less preview copy wasn't working because we couldn't get anything to happen. Fortunately before a phone call of complaint was made someone had the bright idea of trying a mouse and, seeing as it worked, red faces all round were averted at the last moment. It's strange actually, but this change of control method really does throw experienced Valhalla players for a while and there was a certain degree of resentment among the team for a while but as we progressed through the early stages everyone had to grudgingly agree that a change for the better had definitely been made.

Apart from that though it's pretty much as you were gameplay wise. The puzzles remain in a similar style, the storyline is refreshingly innocent once again, reminding you of the childhood tales that you used to read at bedtime. You know, before you started taking drugs and nicking cars and the quest is again one of the most challenging you'll undertake. It's as simple as this, if you're still serious about the Amiga you must buy a copy of this, and if you're not it's still worth dusting off the old machine and giving this a crack because it won't come out on any other format for a while and as far as gameplay goes, this matches just about anything else around in terms of playability and enjoyment. And there are very few Amiga games that can claim that in this day and age.

Vulcan are thankfully sticking by the Amiga as well, so there could well be a few more treats in store before long.

Sounds like someone's had a look inside the Amiga Action good games cupboard!

Vandalia games are undoubtedly the most popular among the team and this one is no exception. I'd be amazed if anyone who starts playing doesn't see it through to a conclusion and if you do that you'll more than have had your eighteen quid's worth. Get ordering it immediately, and we're not just saying that because of the reader offer either (which, incidentally can be found on page 32 I believe. Just if you're interested that is). Trainspotting 18 From the makers of Shallow Grave

SHOOP SHOOP

You've heard the song - you probably hated it, mind - you know it stars Whitney Houston - that probably won't increase the urge to rent though - but never mind, the film is allegedly alright. Apparently. Anyhow, as we've said, Whitney acts, as does co-stars Angela Bassett (What's Love Got To Do With It), Lela Rochon and Loretta Devine and the whole caboodle has been directed by a man normally known for his acting abilities in such movies as The Crying Game, Species and Pret A Porter, Forest Whitaker. The film is based on the best seller from Terry McMillan and tells the tale of four women looking out for Mr Right and overcoming the burden of their terrible present partners. It's one of those 'feel good' movies, especially if you're a girl, and your mum or sister will love it to pieces. If you, however are more concerned with car chases, pump-action shotguns and loads of blood and guts, you're gonna be better off renting out something like Ninja Zombie Cops Go Mental: Part Five.

VEIN SPOTTING

A massive hit at the cinema, Trainspotting is now on its way to a video store near you. Everyone in the country must know something about this movie by now, so we won't go in to great detail about the film's plot. Needless to say, it choc-a-block full of dirty needles, scabby arms, pointless violence, Scottish folk, swearing, sex, drugs and rock 'n roll. Made by the creators of that other hit British movie Shallow Grave, Trainspotting stars Ewan McGregor as the film's main character, Renton, BBC's Hamish Macbeth (AKA Robert Carlyle) as tough guy Begbie, Hackers' bright young thing Johnny Lee Miller as Sick Boy and the hilarious Ewen Bremner as the happy-go-lucky Spud. It's a movie that will make you soil your slacks laughing, plus give you an insiders view on the self-destruction of the aforementioned bunch of liars, psychos and loser junkies. Anyway, it's bloody brilliant and comes complete with one of the best film soundtracks you're ever likely to get your ears around, so get down to Blockbuster, convince the guy behind the counter that you're over 18 and rent it out, now!

KNICKERS, KNACKERS, KNOCKERS

If you like settling down for the evening in front of the telly and getting stuck into a good wholesome family movie, then forget we ever mentioned the forthcoming Fox Guild Home Entertainment release, Showgirls. It features the lovely Elizabeth Berkley as an ambitious pretty young thing, desperate to reach the top of the entertainment world - at any costs. She openly uses her sexuality to climb the ladder to success, so much so that she quickly becomes caught up in the sleazy world of lap-dancing and strip clubs. We know it sounds like an ideal movie for a quiet night in, but unless you're over the age of eighteen, you won't be able to watch it.

Tough titty, as they say. Anyway, those of you with chest hair and sweat glands may be interested, if only to catch the numerous drop-dead gorgeous babes running around in their birthday suits. Very nice.

INSANE IN THE MNEMBRANE

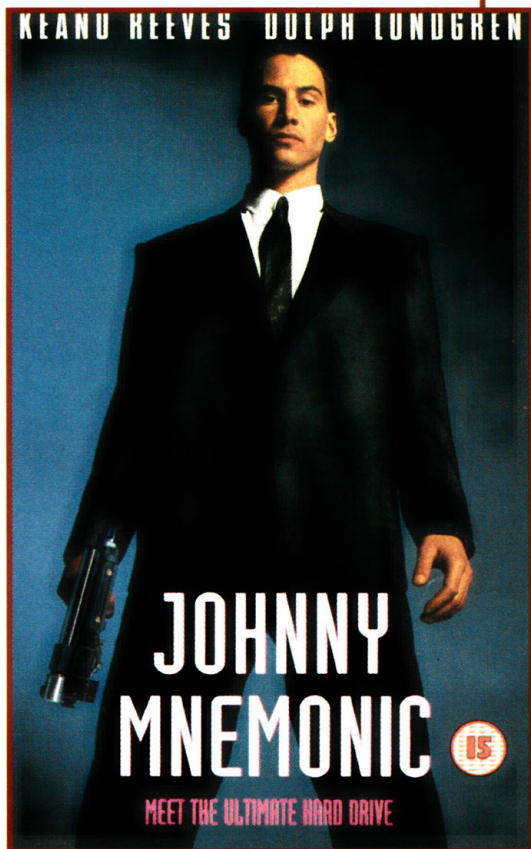

Ladies favourite Keanu Reeves, L.A. rap gangster Ice T, grunge master Henry Rollins, the lovely Dina Meyer and muscle-bound Dolph Lundgren all star in this bizarre movie version of William Gibson's classic novel, Johnny Mnemonic. Basically Keanu Reeves has got a load of information stuck in his head via some wet-wired implants and some dodgy blokes want to get hold of it before his head explodes. Cue thousands of wild special effects and plenty of cyber-imagery as Keanu tries to avoid the bad guys, find out what's in his brain, who Dr Alcombe is and try and keep his head on his shoulders. If you fancy an alternative look at our bleak techno future or just fancy a daft laugh at Ice T's silly make-up, go rent this baby straight away. Alternatively, if you can't be bothered trekking down to the video shop we've got a free copy of Johnny Mnemonic to give away. Simply send us a picture depicting what you think is actually inside Keanu's head and the most amusing/sick sketch wins! All entries to the usual address.

STRAIGHT TO VIDEO...

Some of you may not remember the original Beastmaster movie. It wasn't anything special, but some Hollywood losers have found it fit to spin off numerous sequels, and here we have the third in the series. This time around, Beastmaster is none other than Marc Singer (you know, that bloke off V) and he spends his beast time preventing some sorcerer from nicking a jewelled eye that will bring demon-god Braxus back from the dead. Sounds tempting eh? Kids will lap all this tripe up and anyone with a soft spot for He-Man will find it pretty cool too. I should have imagined.

YO-YO BUM RUSH THE SHOW...

Following their huge success with Japanese anime titles Gunsmith Cats and Dragon Half, A.D.Vision present two new video titles for the month of July. First we have the Sukeban Deka, which tells the tale of an innocent looking schoolgirl who hides a deadly secret; she's really an undercover agent for the FBI who disposes of her enemies with the aid of her amazing and very deadly yo-yo. Strange but true. The second video that gets a release on the 31st of July priced at £12.99 is the more mythical Princess Minerva. This sees aforementioned Princess learning the skills of ancient sword wielding, until one day it's announced that the annual all-female warrior tournament is being held in her home town! Expect loads of scantily-clad bikini-babes whacking hell out of each other as the Princess and her buddies attempt to rescue her bodyguard, Blue Morris from the sinister sorceress Dynastar. As we said earlier, they're both on sale soon, so go out and buy them both!

ACTION REVIEW

BAT 'N' BALL

Ladeez and gentlemen, a big hand please for Gloria!... Estefan! "One, two, three, four, come on baby do a pinball game, five, six, seven times. (Screeeech!... Crash!) Oooh, me back!" Er, here's PAUL ROUNDELL...

Pinball Mania

The Tarantula table is based upon the hairy-legged spider that inhabits tropical parts of the world and reptile houses in UK zoos. You know, the ones that have those glass cases with a sign telling you what's in them, but all you can see is a twig and an old sweet wrapper

In the ten months since I reviewed 21st Century's last silverball effort, Pinball Illusions, I haven't played it once. Not that it's pump, you understand; it's just that the version we had on our hard drive corrupted, and it was too much trouble to ring and ask for another.

Surprising really, even for a master of slipshoddery such as myself, because I like pinball, and I especially liked Pinball Illusions. Not proper pinball, I don't like that. Just computer pinball. At work. Too many sweaty losers on the real pinball tables for my liking. Oh, now look – I've gone and made the beginning of my review sound like the beginning of my review of Pinball Illusions. I know, I'll consign issue 65 back to its folder and stop looking at it for phrases I can pinch.

Now then, there was a point in there somewhere, and if you don't mind bearing with me, I'd like to go back and find it.....

Ah yes, not playing Pinball Illusions much despite liking it. Right. Well, because of this hard drive/laziness problem, I was stuck without a pinball game to my name, and spent many a dinner time wistfully looking back upon those few days late in 1994 when flippers flapped and curses echoed asunder as the ball disappeared down the gutter once more. "The only way I'll get to play a pinball game on the Amiga again..." I thought to myself on more than one occasion, "...is if the people at 21st Century do yet another one. But of course they won't..."

Imagine my delight then when it was announced that 21st Century would be producing another pinball game for the Amiga. Imagine my anticipation as, weeks later, I loaded the game into the trusty but dusty A1200 and waited. Imagine my relief on seeing the option of four tables and not just three as in Pinball Illusions. Imagine, if you will, my despair – my anguish – on realising that it was utter bob.

Well, not bob. Not the game itself. Not exactly. How can I put this? Pinball Illusions (21st Century pinball game number three) was better than Pinball Fantasies (21st C PG #2), and Pinball Fantasies was in turn much better than Pinball Dreams (pinners game #1). It stands to reason then that in the great big cycle of pinball evolution, Pinball Mania, this fourth and latest manifestation, should be better than Pinball Illusions. But it isn't. In fact, not only is it not better than game number three, it is nowhere near as good as the first 21st Century pinball effort, Pinball Dreams. And that is what's bob.

So what, as they say, is the crack? Well I'll mention this once and then leave it alone, but it has to be pointed out that Digital Illusions, Swedish developer of the first three 21st Century pinball games, is now out of the picture, and that Spidersoft, PC converter of the previous efforts, has been fully responsible for Pinball Mania.

We have four tables, and by way of introduction we'll call them Tarantula, Jailbreak, Kick-off and Jackpot. The principles are much as you'd expect: Fire the ball into specific positions to gain as many points as possible, picking up random scores as you go by way by pinging off obstacles. And this is where the problems start. A triumph of previous efforts was the table design. Sure, everyone decides upon a personal favourite after a few minutes' play, but each table without exception has always offered something in the way of... well, maybe not even excitement, but interest at least. And that's Tarantula and Kick-off out for starters, tables which are almost featureless in the bottom two thirds, and only marginally better at the top, which is a difficult place to sustain the ball, and consequently, pap.

Jailbreak and Jackpot fare better, with a couple of lowish chutes in the former and a neat gambling option in the latter, and the graphics in all tables are far from terrible. In fact, they're pretty near the standards set by the other three (but ultimately closer to Dreams). But here's problem number two. The ball – its appearance, movement and adherence to the laws of gravity so excellently and progressively mastered by Digital Illusions – has taken a massive leap backwards in all three disciplines. It looks like a silver circle, slides rather than rolls, and has an alarming tendency to randomly (and occasionally, admittedly) shoot to where you certainly didn't flip it. In fact at times it seems to dither for a split second in the middle of the screen, as if pulled by two opposing and invisible forces. And of course there is no longer a multi-ball option: No big deal alone, but a point of note considering the game must surely be touted as an alternative to Illusions.

There are a lot of quibbles in this review, and in light of Mania's predecessors, they are all justly deserved.

SEEN IT ALL BEFORE...?

Dreams

Generally regarded as the first "proper" decent pinball game on the Amiga, and heralding the arrival of Digital Illusions as a, er, force in pinball simulations, its tables were excellently drawn and animated, and the ball moved in a realistic fashion never before seen.

FANTASIES

Bigger tables, brighter colours, better music and a more realistic ball made Fantasies the cash-in hit 21st Century dreamed of. Worthy of purchase even if you were an owner of Dreams, this was a pinball treat the likes of which no-one had ever previously dreamed. Or something.

ILLUSIONS

A longer-in-coming sequel than Fantasies, Illusions had to be special in order to be categorised as anything but more of the same. And indeed it was! Special, that is, not more of the same. Hyper realistic ball movement, and for the first (and last?) time, a multi-ball option. It had taken a hell of a long time to figure out, but it worked a treat, and pinball fans everywhere emptied their wallets once more. And rightly so.

OBSESSION

Yes, it's a decent pinball game which actually ISN'T published by 21st Century. Coming after all of the above three, it offers much the same as Dreams or Fantasies in terms of graphics and gameplay, though ball representation is poorer and it doesn't come close to Illusions.

Had this been released before Pinball Dreams then it would have been looked upon as the best pinball game for the Amiga. But, just as Dreams has been bettered by Fantasies, Illusions and possibly Obsession, this is bettered by them all. And considering it's the latest offering, it must be seen in the light of what's gone before it. Basically, it's the fifth best pinball game on the Amiga.

Giving The Gam

Ok, so it's embarrassing to admit you are rubbish at Sensi. It's probably the most competitive game on the Amiga and if you keep getting hammered at it by a 6 year old then, I think it's about time you read this.

Don't start with your favourite team. It may seem a strange way of playing Sensi, but it'll give you something to aim for. If you support Manchester Utd, start with someone like Bury so you can aim for that job. You'll be surprised how much longer you'll play the game. Although whichever team you start with whether it's Barnet or Blackburn your first mission is to take a trip to the transfer market to pick up some bargains but before that you must look at your squads statistics. Even though the game claims that player's ability shouldn't be judged by the players value, it helps immensely because obviously an 8 million pound player is going to be far better than a player valued at 250K

Start by putting all your unwanted players ie the cheapest on the transfer list and get as much as you possibly can for them - don't let them go at silly prices.

Now depending on what team you are you will be able to work out which price bracket you can allow yourself to spend.

If you are in division 3, then most of the players are around 130-200k, you need to get your players up to division 2 quality so you can remain ahead of the rest of the pack. The division 2 players have a price bracket of your weakest departments. Now you must have a dabble with your squad and keep chopping and changing the players and their positions until you get as many 'ticks' from the computer as possible.

When you are happy with your team, you must make sure you have a spare player in each department although not just any player, he must be at the most as good as your weakest player in the side. If anyone should get injured or a red card then you can replace him easily, although injuries will occur regularly, both central defenders are strike partners will rarely be injured at the same time, if they are... then er, that's football for you.

The Next Glenn Hoddle

If you want to be the next England manager, remember to set your nationality to English as you will have more chance of getting the job. Although remember that other international jobs can be offered to you.

To get the elusive job you must impress the chairman almost every season. You must at least finish in the top 10 every season, and if you fail to manage that then winning a cup will be sufficient enough to impress the president of your country. If you can achieve the right blend of these wins then an international job will be offered to you.

For instance, I started my career with Liverpool. I never won the league title and I only ever won the league cup once in around 10 years... It doesn't sound like a good record although I finished in the top 10 every season and was finalists for several competitions, including in Europe.

The Republic of Ireland job was eventually offered to me and I took it. Obviously I wanted to manage England and I could've waited, but no, I was too excited and pressed 'Accept', as soon as possible.

I was met with the horrifying prospect of finding 20 good Irish players in the entire world, it wasn't an easy task although I still managed to win the European Championships. Obviously this and the World Cup are the major competitions and as there is a four year wait between them, I had to play a lot of around 160-300k. This is the price at which you need the players. You can part exchange some of your really poor players although make sure you bring your price down in relation to his value. Always start by adding strength to friendlies which were absolutely pointless to me, although at the end of a year you will be presented with a nice tour somewhere where the opposition is about as good as Doncaster allowing you to pick up a small rusty trophy. That always impresses the president.

When I managed to qualify for the World Cup, the 'president' of England was impressed enough to hand me the job. Blimey, it felt like real life. I was faced with the prospect of doing what every other England fan wants to do and that's pick their own England side and take them to the World Cup finals, although it's not always as simple as that.

Here's how to win that World Cup with England... Take note Glenn Hoddle!

Your first job is to pick 20 players which you will take everywhere, and remember these can be changed at any time so you don't have to stick with them.

Your first idea is probably to fill the team up with English players who play for your club side who you support in real life, whether it's Blackburn or Bury that striker will be first choice for the side, don't do that for god's sake. Pick the best 11 from the entire world not from your own side!

Use your friendlies to test formations. Don't bother messing around with tactics they'll just end up bugging your players up. Just stick to the standard ones. Try and go for a '5-3-2' and if you're losing switch to 'Attack'.

Also if a player should start rolling around on the floor in agony check if he's alright. If the cross next to his name is flashing sub him right away, if not there's no need.

(Hint):

If you think your squad is really good and you begin to lose easy matches (in coach mode), rotate through the spare players to see if there is a good player you have left out. That is usually the case, especially if he's just returned from an injury or suspension and you don't know about it.

How to score in the actual game:-

There are four easy ways of putting the ball in the net and the combination of all will make you look as though you know what you're doing.

Tips in the game

Pressing 'W' as your players pour onto the pitch and you will return to the match screen whereby you will have magically won the game 2-1.

Instant win

Pressing 'L' as your players pour onto the pitch and you will return to the match screen whereby you will have magically lost the game 2-1. Ooh... that's helpful

More money

Pressing 'M' as your players pour onto the pitch and you will return to the match screen whereby you will have been magically granted a million pounds!

Extra player

season when a better job offer appears, consider it. Now you must go to the transfer market and buy the club's worst player for some money and exchange ONE of you best players for him. Only exchange one player and not two because when following season gets underway one of your players will disappear of the face of the earth... like Paul McGrath. Keep repeating this every week until your new team is awesome.

Golden goal

When playing the game boot the ball up the pitch towards the goal and when it's on its way keep your finger on the space bar and then press 'R' for replay and when it finishes the game will resume and the ball,

TONY WARNER			JASON KEARTON

The Bland Way

The bland way is usually the most popular with players who aren't particularly good at the actual arcade part. It just involves the player running directly down the centre of the pitch and then curling the ball left or right. If you hit it with enough power the ball will go in.

providing it was on target and you let go of the space bar, will fly into the back of the net. The keeper doesn't see a thing.

Free players

Go and buy a really expensive striker and select a reserve striker from their side too. Now put the money down to zero and exchange one of you decent players for the both of them. With a little bit of luck you will have your new player and your old one and the reserve will be stuck at his old club. Hurrah!

The Spectacular Way

The spectacular way looks the best. All you have to do is cross the half-way line about 2 thirds across the pitch and just welly it with full power while facing diagonally towards the

The Slide Way

If you have a fast striker and winger then this method is superb. The idea is to run down the wing with the ball until you are just approaching the 18 yard box. Cross the ball diagonally while adding a little bit of curve away from the goal. This should be enough to entice the 'keeper out and leaves one of your strikers at the far post, you will need to slide in otherwise you will just get tackled. You can also use the left and right sliding method with the ball depending where you are in relation to the goal.

goal, if you hold the joystick in the opposite direction it should bounce under the keeper. It's a difficult way to score, but if you manage it at least twice, you'll get the hang of it. Also, it's a good one for beating good keepers because the don't seem to expect it.

The Easy Way

The best way is to conjure up a sweet passing move making sure you give it you one of your strikers while they are lurching outside the 18 yard box, now if you run into the box you can just smash it out of the keeper reach into the far corner. (It looks great if it bounces in off the post too) Obviously if you manage to run in at the wrong angle, it won't work, so keep going and just be patient and wait for the keeper to come out. You'll need very quick reactions, but you should be able to bend the ball around him easily with a bit of practice.

Sensible Soccer Guide

“Heee-ah
-yah-yah!”

Celebrity from Beyond

Hee-ah-yah-yah! Cor blimey, when I was asked to write a couple of pages for Amiga Action you could have knocked me down with a feather. I mean, would you Adam and Eve it? If I was still alive I'd be round to tell Busty Babs the good news before you could say 'Vic Flange'. The editor wants me to do some guides or something, so I've knocked together a few hundred words on two games - Operation Stealth and Beneath a Steel Sky. And what a lovely pair they are. Heeee-ah-yah-yah!

Beneath a Steel Sky

Get the metal rod on the left of the screen. Use the rod (crowbar) to open the door on the right. Go through the door. After ditching the cop, go back downstairs and exit to the right. Put the circuit board in the robot shell (the middle piece of junk at the bottom of the screen) and look at the transporter robot. Step on the lift and quickly go to the room on the right. Open the cabinet and get the spanner before the man comes back. Talk to the man and talk to Joey. Go back to the left. Talk to Joey and have him give the transporter robot a jump start. When the transport robot brings a barrel and activates the lift, go down the hole. Look at the lock next to the door. Talk to Joey and have him open the door. Search the body and get his ID.

Go through the door and head down the walkway to the right. Go in the door on the right and talk to the girl (Anita). If Lamb kicks you out, just go back in. Go to the right and put the spanner in the cogs. Take the spanner back and go back to the left. Use the spanner to loosen the welder shell and talk to Joey to give him a new shell. Go right again, then try going into the room on the upper left. Talk to Joey and send him in the store room - you can watch him through the window if you want. Talk to Joey and have him weld the fuse box. When Joey comes back, go into the storeroom and open the gangway. The WD-40 and key are

Operation Stealth

AT THE AIRPORT

Go to the newspaper machine and examine the coin-slot. Take the money and use the coin on the slot, then examine the newspaper and make a note of the country mentioned.

Enter the toilets and go into the empty cubicle. Operate the case, take the pen, examine the passport and take notes. Operate the calculator and the button until the required country is shown. Use the blank passport on the opening, then operate the button and the case to close it. Leave the cubicle and exit from the toilet. Use the foreign passport (not the American one), speak to the hostess and examine the telegram. Go left and use the airline ticket on the guard.

Go left into the baggage room and examine the baggage until the case for Mr Martinez is found. Take and operate the bag and take out the razor and the pen.

Go right into the toilet, operate the razor and use the cable on the wall plug. Listen to the message and leave the toilet. Use the foreign passport on the official, then go left and wait on the pavement for a taxi.

IN THE TOWN

Operate the American passport and take the notes, then operate the passport to close it again.

Exit left into the bank and use the notes twice on the bank clerk. Now go to the florist and use the coins on the florist to get the red carnation.

Take the carnation and use it on John, then go to the park and walk around the beach until your contact appears. As soon as you have the card and key, exit to the right and go back to the bank. Use the card on the bank clerk, go down the stairs and use the key on the bottom right-hand safe. Take the box and the envelope, at which point you should be captured and taken to the cave.

Next month's 'celebrity from beyond the grave' will guide you through the rest of Operation Stealth. Heee-ah-yah-yah!

ity Guides The Grave

In this brand new series aimed at helping today's Amiga gamer, television stars of yesteryear have been dragged from the afterlife to provide us with the guides we need to help us on our adventuring way. This month Sid James holds forth on Operation Stealth and Beneath a Steel Sky...

not needed, but get the putty from the floor where the gangway was. Leave the storeroom and go to the electric plant (left, left, left, left, left door). Use the spanner to loosen both buttons on the right control panel and have Joey help you push both buttons at once. Shut the switch off on the left section of control panel, then take the light bulb, put the putty (plastic explosive) in the socket, and turn the power back on. Make sure both switches are down!

she will give you the jammer. You can now get more information from the terminals. You must also get Anita to tell you about the Schriebmann port.

The next stop is the implant office (left, left, left, lift - make sure Joey comes along - left, left, left). Talk to the projector. Have Joey talk to the hologram so you can get in. Go left and see the doctor and barter for your port implant. Talk to the doc again until he tells you to go see his friend. This time go and see Anchor (right, right, right, right, right, right). When you ask for the special insurance, tell him the doctor sent you. When Anchor goes in the back to make a phone call, have Joey weld off the anchor. Combine the anchor and the cable and you have a grappling hook. Go back up to the fire escape (left, left, lift, left, left, upper right, stairs, right) and attach the grappling hook to the Security sign. Forget the lockers and go right to the interface in the next room. Put your id through the slot and use the interface.

Welcome to VR. Pick up the ball and exit right. Open the carpet bag (use the doorknob in your inventory), pick up the magnifying glass and the birthday surprise. Use the decompress program on the compressed data (in your inventory). Exit right and use the passwords you obtained on the floor spots. It shouldn't be much trouble. Just basically put one in the closest hole and then pick up the other. Eventually exit up. Get the bust and the book, and use the magnifying glass on the three documents.

Now disconnect and use the terminal (with your id card). Activate phoenix so you have unlimited access, and take Lamb's credit and access. Also, be sure to read the first two documents in the security services. Go talk to Lamb again - he should be next to the elevator going down - (lift, left, right). If he isn't there, wander around and come back; he will show up eventually. Talk to him and get access to his apartment. Go down to the next level and go to Lamb's apartment (lift, left, green door, id in right slot, right door). Feed his cat if you feel like it and get the video tape off the bookshelf.

Now you can go down to the next level (exit left, down, lift). The first thing you should do is talk to the doorman (left). You are then going to need a sponsor, so go and find Mrs Pierdman and talk to her. When she goes back to her apartment, buzz her so you can get in (private lift on rightmost screen). Ask her about sponsorship again and she will go and use the phone.

Good gawd, is that the time? I'll have to leave it there for now. Hattie's shouting my name, so I'll have to get back to the great big Wedded Bliss Marriage Agency in the sky. I'll ask around up here and see if any of my mates know how to finish off these guides. I've heard Kenneth Williams is a dab hand at helping people out of a tight spot. Or should that be into a tight spot. Heee-ah-yah-yah!

Swap Shop

When selling stuff through Swap Shop (and it doesn't have to be games – washing machines, cars, stolen cigarettes. . . anything goes) you can of course ask for whatever cash you like. Your chances of a response are better, however, if you keep your expectations realistic. This is the Amiga Action rough pricing guide, using 'example bundles' and assuming that everything is in good condition and machines come with a mouse/joystick.

Buyers – if the prices of the ads tally with these examples then you aren't getting ripped off. Probably.

If we could be bothered changing the coupon so that it had less boxes for words, we would. But we can't be bothered, and instead insist that if you must fill it, then at least only have one word in each. Anything else will only cause us to throw your ad in the bin, so who's losing out there? Is it us? Is it? No, of course it isn't

ANCO FOOTBALL MANAGER

Vol. 1 Issue 5

Carlisle surrender to A Maddock

Birmingham City won a close run cup tie yesterday against a battling Carlisle side full of commitment. P.Valentine netted the opening goal after 7 minutes as Carlisle took the initiative. P.Valentine's goal was the only one of his team as Birmingham City's P.Valentine netted the opening goal after 7 minutes as Carlisle took the initiative. P.Valentine's goal was the only one of his team as Birmingham City's P.Valentine netted the opening goal after 7 minutes as Carlisle took the initiative.

Player Manager 2

Originally reviewed way back in issue 73 Player Manager 2 received an impressive score of 92%. This time around Andy Sharp takes another look at one of Anco's finest moments.

Now being released at a budget price Player Manager 2 is definitely set to be as popular as before. You take over a struggling team as either the manager or as part of the team and build the players up to championship level.

As you take the reins of your team you will have to discover the strengths and weaknesses of your squad and work it from here by either selling or re-training them to improve their performances.

Your headquarters if you like are viewed as if they're a cut away of a building. This is where you orchestrate every last strategy. Just click on the necessary room to pick your team, change your game tactics or just peruse your finances or archives. It's all in here.

If all of this preparation takes a bit too much effort you may just click on the edited highlights option, or if this isn't your cuppa you can be bland enough to sit and watch the whole thing. To be honest it works best in management mode and although it's a playable game with four separate views this really does take too long to plough through if you play through for long periods of time.

Player Manager 2 has always been one of the finest management games and now it's reached the budget market people who fancy a dabble in the football world without forking out a fortune are in for a treat.

Blimey! Some Actual news!

Ocean Software, Manchester's finest, have announced a fantastic bargain type affair down at your local game shop. Well, as long as your local game shop is Electronic Boutique that is. Yes, believe it or not (we're not much bothered either way if the truth be known), but you can now get your hands on three classic titles for your rapidly-decomposing machine for an all-time low, low price of - wait for it - £20!! Desert Strike, Syndicate, Dune 2, Cannon Fodder, Football Glory, PGA Tour Golf Plus and Player Manager 2 are just some of the game son offer in this fantastic deal of a lifetime. So you know what's next, don't you? That's right, get your boots on and nip down to EB sharpish!

Possible nightmare for mancunian gamesters

After the bomb ripped through most of Manchester's Arndale Centre, leaving many of the shopping plazas boutiques badly damaged, it has transpired that gamers requiring new software may have to go elsewhere for some considerable time. Stores such as Game, WH Smith and Electronic Boutique may face a closure of their Manchester stores for up to three years as the Arndale gets re-built. All three were situated on the side of the shopping centre where the exploding van was parked, thus resulting in massive devastation throughout. Other Manchester-based stores like HMV, Dixons, Boots and Virgin have all suffered damage from the bomb and have yet to announce when they will be opening again. Escom and Software Warehouse however, survived the blast unscathed and are now open for business.

Competition entry form

1) You know that Golden Goal bit in the Semi Finals when big Gazza j-u-s-t failed to connect with the cross? Well what we want to know is how close do YOU reckon Gazza's foot was to the ball?

- ☐ a) Very
- ☐ b) Extremely
- ☐ c) Give over, he was miles from it

2) Ex-Editor of this very mag, Mr P Roundell, has got himself another job. What do you reckon he does for a living now?

- ☐ a) Professional pie tester, Rawtenstall Pie Ltd
- ☐ b) Rides rollercoasters, worldwide
- ☐ c) School crossing attendant, Rawtenstall Primary School

3) How sad are the remaining members of Amiga Action at Paul's departure?

- ☐ a) Very, we're all emotionally unstable
- ☐ b) Not arsed. He never really spoke to us anyway
- ☐ c) Paul who?

Send your winning entries scrawled across the back of a nearby envelope, or postcard if you have one handy, and send it off to the usual address. Make sure you mark your cards: MAMO MIA!

☐ Please tick here if you do not wish to receive promotional material from other companies.

MASSIVE MAMO BONANZA!

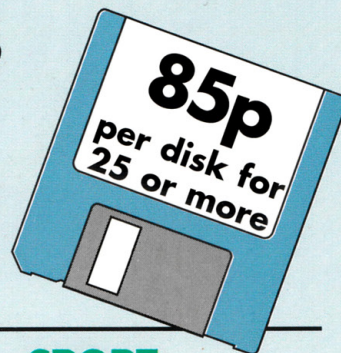

It's that time of the month again where we search the office for random stuff to fill these drab pages with, and this time we've come up trumps. Well, sort of. What's on offer is this: 10 copies - yes, TEN - of forthcoming Manga anime treat, Secret Of Mamo. In case you were wondering, it's the follow-up to Castle Of Cagliostro that we featured last month, and let us assure you it's as awesome as they come. Anyway, if you fancy a copy to add to your video collection, then simply answer this amazingly easy, yet completely unconnected questions:
